* Although booking training for just one person may appear an expensive option, a single delegate will usually only need one day to cover as much as a group can cover on a two-day course, and for all one-to-one training, topics can be precisely tailored and expanded to meet the individual's detailed requirements. On consideration of these two facts it's clear that one-to-one training can be as cost effective as attending a group course, and sometimes far more so.
